

Security and performance for Axesat provided by Avira

As the Colombian market leader with customers or operations in Ecuador, Venezuela, Perú and Central America, Axesat is the leading provider of satellite telecommunication and video solutions for the corporate market. Founded in 2003 and characterized by a pioneering and innovative spirit, Axesat is a regional referent for high quality services.

If you are in charge of the satellite communication of an increasing number of organizations and the most important providers of data services in the region who require an uninterrupted operation 24/7 and have the highest levels of demand, quality becomes a lifestyle to you. For this reason, Axesat was looking for an antivirus solution at eye-level.

“We were looking for an antivirus solution with the highest detection rates and as resource saving as possible,” said Juan Gabriel Londoño, the analyst of the enterprise infrastructure for Axesat.

Avira offers the solution.

“From the beginning we knew that Axesat would find with Avira the perfect solution for its requirements based on their reputation, and the crucial character of the operations of Axesat only allows the very best,” said Javier Fonseca, responsible for the activities of Avira in Colombia.

After an extensive analysis of the available solutions in the market which included tests in the working environment and product comparisons, the engineers of Axesat found advantages in the solutions of Avira, such as the product’s effectiveness and extremely low consumption of resources.

Axesat found even more positive aspects. The IT department quickly became familiar with the functionality and characteristics of the Avira products because of their simplicity. The stability and effectiveness of the initial configuration allowed them to invest their time in other tasks and they didn’t find compatibility problems with their working applications. This enhanced the users’ experience and liberated the support department from various tasks.

“The security of our systems is really important to us and we are always looking for top quality solutions. Since the implementation of Avira, computer viruses are no longer a concern for us,” emphasized Mr. Londoño, the IT engineer.

“It has been extremely satisfactory to meet the demands of a company with the profile of Axesat, and we are working hard to be on its side in the future,” said Mr. Fonseca.

No virus will ever be an obstacle for Axesat, since Avira is running on its systems.
